Z's Core Associate Partnership with CCNZ

We would like to acknowledge the ongoing partnership we have with Z, which has just renewed its CCNZ Core Associate membership for the 2017/18 year.

Z has been a major supporter of CCNZ for many years and we truly value their support of our organisation and industry

Z is focused on developing people, which we appreciate with their sponsorship of the CCNZ/Z People Awards, their fantastic support and commitment to the national and regional excavator operator competitions and their sponsorship of the CCNZ Conference. We would be unable to have these competitions, events and awards without the support of partners and sponsors like Z and we are extremely grateful for this.

Thank you Z for being such a great, professional company to partner with and for your contribution towards giving our people opportunities to achieve recognition and develop to their full potential. We encourage our members to support Z.

Budget 2017 announcements around infrastructure have all been made over the past few months so there was nothing new announced on budget day.

CCNZ put out a media release which welcomed the spend on infrastructure but said that with the increase in work both central and local government need to get smarter about how the infrastructure work is procured. Click here to read the release.

The Government's total investment in new infrastructure over the next four years is $32.5 billion.

This includes $9.2 billion in new State Highways and $2.7 billion in housing, including the Auckland Housing Programme.

The Budget 2017 includes $4 billion on infrastructure:

Girls with HI-Vis Month!

Construction Industry Survey 2017

In association with Teletrac Navman, Civil Contractors New Zealand (CCNZ), and Contractor magazine.

There's still time to participate in the Construction Industry Survey 2017 – we need your help with this important piece of industry research.

If you've already completed the survey, then thanks! If not, please read on.

The research seeks your opinion on hot topics including productivity, measurement, regulatory compliance, use of technology, staff and skills availability, procurement and prequalification.

Your opinion is extremely valuable, and by participating you lend your voice to important topics that help shape the construction industry.

The survey will take around 15 minutes.

TAKE THE SURVEY.

To show our appreciation for your participation, you will receive an entry into a draw for one of five $100 prezzie cards.

The survey results will be presented at the CCNZ Conference in Dunedin, August 2017.

After the conference, the report will be emailed to all survey participants, and will be available on the Teletrac Navman and Contractor magazine websites.

The survey results will also be featured in Contractor magazine.

The survey will be available for participation until 15 June. All individual responses will be confidential and anonymous and only summary data and statistics will be presented in the final survey results.

ACC Fact-Sheet series

Manage Company has approached ACC suggesting it creates a series of ACC fact-sheets tailored to our industry. ACC agreed and has provided Manage Company with the relevant data and statistics.

The result is a five ACC fact-sheet series tailored to the industry. Manage Company would like these fact-sheets to become your collateral with the primary purpose being to educate and provide a series of free tools and resources to help with that.

A fact-sheet will be released every fortnight until the end of July to coincide with ACC releasing the latest ACC employer invoices.

The 5 ACC fact-sheet series includes:

1. Experience Rating: what it is, the good the bad and what the employer can do to manage it
2. Claims: taking control over workplace claims, doctors, medical certificates and ACC
3. Return-to-Work: when an injury is bad – what happens
4. CoverPlus Extra: too many shareholders do not have much ACC cover... let's get it sorted
5. ACC Invoices: the 101 of ACC invoices

Please click on the link below to download the first fact sheet.
