Welcome to the 4th Awesome Arts Access Auction.

Arts Access Aotearoa believes everyone in New Zealand has the right to express themselves creatively, and be included as audience members and visitors to galleries and museums. Everyone also has the right to develop artistic skills, benefit economically from the arts and make a valuable contribution as artists.

However, some people in New Zealand aren't included in opportunities because of their disability or impairment. One in four (1.1 million) people in New Zealand has a disability or impairment that affects their daily lives (Census 2013),

There is a lack of understanding about the requirements of people with access needs. Arts Access Aotearoa is changing this. Your support tonight helps us make the arts accessible and more inclusive for all people in New Zealand.

Howard Fancy
Chair

Richard Bengel
Executive Director

Tonight there are more than 60 items that could be yours, including entertainment, art, accommodation and food.

We are grateful to Olivier Lacoua, General Manager, and staff of CQ Hotels Wellington – our essential partner in this event and champions of accessibility.

Thank you to every individual, artist, business and arts organisation for donating a wonderful range of auction items. Thanks to our sponsors and supporters, and to each person who has volunteered tonight and helped with ticket sales. Thank you to everyone who has attended and for bidding. Your support helps Arts Access Aotearoa make the arts accessible for everyone.

Renee Patete, who is blind, enjoyed a touch tour and audio described performance of Les Talens Lyriques, provided by Chamber Music New Zealand
